MACON.

The lady, Mrs. Bone, of this city, who, while under mental depression cut her throat with a razor, is still living. She lays in a critical condition. She is in her right mind now, is a lady of refinement, and accomplished. It is thought that if she can live a few weeks, nature will form a passage for swallowing and she may live for years. A heavy defalcation has come to light in one of our institutions. About $7,000 have wood bined. Of course the thing must be hushed up.—Macon Enterprise.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE NARROW GAUGE QUESTION.—Thus far the advocates of narrow gauge railroads have occupied the field to the almost total exclusion of supporters of the other side of the question. But Colonel Kennedy, a Royal English Engineer, has just submitted a report to the Home government upon the working of narrow gauge roads in India. In that report he shows that the average bulk of a ton of freight on the leading roads is eighty cubic feet, wool and cotton entering largely into the traffic. To stow eight tons the car requires six hundred and forty cubic feet, or a load on the broad gauge not reaching over five feet above the platform, and whose centre of gravity was only five feet above the rails. But the same load could not be piled on the narrow car without making the load preposterously high. The conclusion is that while a narrow gauge will do for a community that ships freight of small bulk, like ores or minerals, it will not suffice for an agricultural community shipping bulky freight. As many of these narrow gauge roads are contemplated in Tennessee and in the Southwestern States, such facts as these stated by Colonel Kennedy should be carefully considered.—Press & Herald.

Terrible Tragedy in Brussels.

A Captain of Dragoons who Misled a Young Lady Thirty Years Ago, Kills his own Son in a Duel Without Knowing Him, and in His Turn is Killed by the Mother of the Murdered Man, the Victim of 30 Years Ago who Lastly Kills Herself.

L'Independance Belge of the 20th ult., gives the following account of an awful tragedy which lately happened in Brussels:

M. Edmond F. was a half-pay captain of cavalry, who left his native town of Chateau Chinon about four years ago in order to accept a position as manager of an iron foundry in the vicinity of Brussels.

In the year 1842, at the age of twenty-four he was sous-lieutenant of a regiment of dragoons garrisoned at Lisle. There he seduced the daughter of a respectable merchant and abandoned her to her shame. The poor girl soon found herself in a condition which rendered exposure unavoidable. In order to conceal her fault she fled from her father's house and was seen no more.

Last week Captain F. visited, in the company of a few friends, one of the most frequented beer gardens in Brussels. While there, engaged in a game of cards, a quarrel arose between one of his friends and a young officer of the rifle corps. Captain F. took the part of his friend. High words followed and insults. The upshot was that Captain F. challenged the young officer to fight a duel with pistols. They met on the following day and Captain F. killed his adversary by sending a bullet into his heart. This was on Friday morning. Captain F. now hurried home in order to prepare for escape to France. Last Sunday after having settled all his affairs he packed his valise and was about to leave when a woman in black presented herself abruptly at the door. Her face was covered with a thick veil and she appeared greatly agitated, her body trembling all over. Captain F., highly surprised and something like troubled with a gloomy foreboding, asked her into the reception room. Scarcely had he pronounced the first word when the unknown lady in black drew up her veil in a sudden, convulsive manner and showed him a face pale as death and eyes full of anger and tears. At the sight of that face the Captain retreated a step and uttered a cry of horror and astonishment.

In that woman in tears and dressed in black, with faded features and hair all gray, he recognized his victim of thirty years ago—the daughter of the Lisle merchant.

"Wretch!" she exclaimed, advancing upon him all pale and threatening, "accursed being! villain! murderer! It was not enough to have dishonored a woman—to have basely abandoned her! You had to kill her child—to assassinate your own son! And such crimes should go unpunished! The most monstrous of misdeeds should leave you in possession of the name of an honest man! No, miserable destroyer of so many innocent beings, you shall perish by the hands of your victim."

Scarcely had she spoken these words when she drew forth a revolver from under her cloak, fired twice and blew the Captain's brains out. She then fired a third and fatal shot at herself.

Hearing the sound of three shots the servants and neighbors came running in, very much frightened. A fearful sight presented itself to them—two bodies lying side by side on the floor and weltering in blood. The body of Captain E. gave no sign of life; that of his former victim was breathing yet, and by dint of exertions revived, for a few hours only. She was taken to the nearest hospital, where she expired in the middle of the following night, after having answered an interrogatory and told the facts as we have related.

NEWSPAPER SENATORS.

The Big Bugs who Have Dabbled in Journalism.

Correspondence Cincinnati Commercial]

WASHINGTON, December 7, 1872.

CARL SCHURZ.

Senator Schurz is a newspaper man. That is to say, when not in politics he is in a newspaper, and it might be added that he is in newspapers a good many times when he is in politics. The Senator is only forty-three years of age, and, as is often encouragingly said of young men, has a career before him. A mind as active, energetic and powerful as his cannot be kept as a light under a bushel. Striking him from committees does not strike him from the sphere of usefulness and action. The now famous Senator never saw this country until 1852, twenty years ago. Perhaps he never would have come to our peaceful shores, but for the fact that he was engaged in the revolution of 1848, and had to flee from his native Germany or part with his head. He first went to Switzerland, thence to London, where he acted as a newspaper correspondent; thence to America. In 1865 and 1866 he was Washington correspondent of the Tribune, but his letters read more like leaders than epistles. They were heavy, solid, labored, searching, deep, learned, thoughtful.

NEWSPAPER MEN IN THE SENATE.

Leaving our subject at the beginning, with the hope of picking it up again, we will glance at the newspaper men in the Senate. It is not generally known how large a proportion of the distinguished men in this body have gone up from the newspaper office, or down, as you may choose to have it.

The President of the Senate himself, our old friend Colfax, was once a printer boy. He is now interested in one or two papers, and writes for half a dozen more. His style is easy, graceful and simple, and it is in Sunday school literature that he shines with the greatest radiance.

Casserly, of California, has been dabbling in newspapers all his life. As a writer, however, he is less successful than as a lawyer, without being particularly brilliant at either. Hill, of Georgia, while not being a newspaper man proper, writes a good deal for the papers. His productions are solemn. J. Rodman West, of Louisiana, used to publish the San Francisco Price Current, which did not require any great amount of literary ability. It is well that it did not. The other Louisiana Senator, W. Pitt Kellogg, has never been a newspaper man. His greatest literary efforts consists in signing his name. Harlan, of Iowa, writes for the Chronicle of this city. The life and spice which has made that journal a household word, is attributable to his flashing and humorous pen. Charles Sumner has written a good deal for the papers, and once edited the American Jurist. Hamlin, of Maine, was a printer boy, and afterward worked as compositor. Zack Chandler was never a newspaper man. There is no telling what a sensation he would have made in the press if he had not gone into the dry goods business.

Simon Cameron served a regular apprenticeship to a printer when a boy. There are many who wish he had stuck to the trade. It is reported that he was a rapid compositor, and could have made a good living at it. Horace Greeley is credited with having said that every printer boy develops into a gentleman or a fraud. As to which department Cameron belongs is best understood by those who have known him longest. He has been the editor of several papers, most of which are now dead. Anthony, of Rhode Island, was for years the editor of the Providence Journal, and is still connected with the press. Brownlow has been an editor most of his life, but never a printer. His trade is that of house-carpenter.

WHY FENTON WAS REMOVED.—But to return to the committee on contingent expenses. There was an object in removing Senator Fenton, beyond the mere partisan spite. During the session, some forty boys are employed in the folding room of the Senate. As there is very little to be done during the recess of Congress, Senator Fenton notified the sergeant-at-arms last spring that after the adjournment not more than five boys would be needed, and only that number would be paid. The Grantites, however, needed their services for folding speeches, franking scurrilous attacks on gentlemen, and sending the same all over the country. Now they desire these boys paid the people's money, and as Senator Fenton will not give his consent to any such transaction, they mean to have a chairman who will. Instead of having their clerks paid by the Government the Granites should pay the Government for the use of the Capitol.

THE MACON SUICIDE.

Remarkable Attempted Self-Destruction of Mrs. Bone, a Respectable Macon Lady, and Her Most Extraordinary Condition Since.

From the Macon Enterprise.]

Since the death of her brother, which occurred some eight months ago, Mrs. Bone's mind has been disturbed, and in fact she is deranged at times, and while in this state she has endeavored to kill herself. One night about four weeks ago, while the family were sleeping, she quietly arose and placing the bolster under the heads of her three children, forced their heads to hang down and their throats to be thrown forward. After doing this she proceeded to the bed where her husband lay sleeping and commenced to unbutton his shirt collar. Before this, however, she had turned up the lamp, making the room very light. In unbuttoning the collar she awoke her husband, and he asked her what she was doing, to which she answered "nothing."

His suspicions being aroused, he got up and discovered his razor case on the mantel empty. He asked where his razor was, but she replied that she did not know. He found the razor in hand and hid it from her. It is supposed that she intended cutting the throats of her children, her husband's and then her own.

After this occurrence the razor was kept hidden, but it seems as if she found it again as the particulars of her last and probable successful attempt will show. Last Sunday morning while dressing her children she drew the back of the razor across her throat, and her oldest child, a girl about eight years old, begged her not to do so, as she was "playing clown." Her husband remonstrated with her for acting so very foolishly before her children, and took the razor away from her. She declared she was not playing clown but was really in earnest, and in a few moments after succeeded, without being seen by him, in slipping the razor out of his pocket, and throwing herself across the bed, told her husband that if he thought she was playing, to look at her. He told her that if she persisted in playing so before the children that he would leave. He turned and left, and no sooner had he touched to bottom step than he heard a noise, and looking back discovered her rushing to and fro, with the blood flowing in copious streams from her neck. He rushed to her and with assistance succeeded in carrying her to her room, and medical aid was summoned as soon as possible. She had cut her throat with the razor!

She now lays in a critical condition. She has not tasted a mouthful of food since Saturday dinner, but the physicians are using every endeavor within their power to adopt some means by which the gnawings of hunger may be allayed. Yesterday a number of physicians went to perform an operation by means of a glass tube and pump. Although she was fairly held, she managed to free one of her hands and jerk the tube out of her throat.

She seems to be in her right mind now and repents of the act. She is a lady of refinement, liberally educated and accomplished. While she cannot articulate a word, she writes to everybody who will converse with her by this means. She gives no definite cause for the rash act, but it is plain that reason occasionally deserted its throne, and it was during these occasional derangements that the terrible deed was committed.

It is thought that if she can live for a few weeks, nature will form a passage for swallowing and she may live for years. The physicians cite an instance which happened in the practice of an eminent German physician, of a man who cut his throat, a passage formed by nature, lived years afterward but finally, while on a drunken spree vomited a great deal, and died by strangulation.

The family have the sincere sympathy of the entire community in their sad affliction.

☞ Mr. Miller, the private Secretary and valuable assistant of Professor Tyndall, has recently died at Philadelphia, of typhoid fever. His death, to eliminate from the question the sentimental element—dying away from home, in a strange land, on a tour through our country—is, practically speaking, a great loss to this eminent scientist. Mr. Miller, by long experience, was nearly as great an adept as Professor Tyndall himself. To him was entrusted all those preparations, all those adjustments of machinery so necessary to successful experiments. In view of the embarrassment in which the death of his assistant has placed this eminent descendant of St. George and Dragon, the New York scientists have creditably come forward, and offered him all the assistance he may need in the preparation of his numerous and delicate experiments.

☞ Whatever may be said of the general scarcity of matrimonial advantages in Massachusetts, the fault apparently does not lie with the fair sex, who, on the contrary, seem disposed to avail themselves of all their limited opportunities. ☞ The Ohio Miner says: "By a beautiful dispensation of Providence, whenever a poor, shiftless, good-for-nothing man is sent into this world, some active, go-ahead little woman is invariably fastened to him to tow him along through, and keep his head above the water. It's for the best, of course. What would become of the poor fellow without her? At the same time she finds it a little hard."

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"—An exchange says: "They have a man in Lock Haven whose name is Gaudam. His would be a nice name for a church deacon. For instance, the preacher would say, 'Gaudam you pass the plate.' Sounds like cussin', don't it? If we were that fellow we would have our Gaudam name changed to something more reverential."

DANGER OF A COLLISION EXISTING.

WASHINGTON, December 14.—General Emory telegraphed to the President that danger of a collision existed between the police and militia, and asked for instructions. A reply was sent at a late hour instructing him in effect not to take sides with either party but to hold his forces in readiness to preserve the peace and to interfere only in case of necessity for that purpose.

John G. Meetay, of Illinois, President Lincoln's private Secretary, was to-day chosen by the Judges of the United States Supreme Court, Marshall of that body in place of Col. Parsons, resigned.

President Grant, to-day, received by telegraph, a copy of the Memorial of the Citizens' Committee of New Orleans, setting forth their greivance. This Memorial was soon after placed in the hands of Attorney-General Williams. Information that the committee will start for Washington probably today was also received, but judging from what was said this morning by Attorney General Williams, their mission will be futile as the general Government is inflexibly fixed on its determination to support the Pinchbeck State Government. The Department of Justice has closely investigated all the facts in the case, and is satisfied with the course which has been officially taken here by the administration.

NEW YORK.

MR. GREELEY'S WILL.

NEW YORK, December 13.—The Greeley will case came up in the West Chester Surrogates Court, when the fact was developed that Ida Greeley had deeded half of her property left by her father's last will to her sister, Gabriele Greeley, merely reserving the right to superintend her education and affairs during her minority.

Col. Blood was surrendered by his bondsmen and re-arrested.

Some of the lately arrived Italian emigrants who appeared on Broadway, presented a most miserable spectacle. They were almost destitute of clothing, and looked as if they were starved. The city authorities are alarmed at the arrivals of so many, and hoped the officials at Washington will take steps to prevent further immigration of such a nature.

The Italian Consul in this city states that all of them have passports from their government, and are not brigands.

Among them is a friend of the late Edwin Forrest. He says he left all his estate for the purpose of founding an actors' home in Philadelphia.

Sterling's Southern Series

Readers, Orators & Copy Books.

THE undersigned now own the plates of this POPULAR SERIES; and as they are the only Purely Southern School Books offered in the market, we submit that it is to the interest of Teachers to patronize them. Send for circulars of Special Terms to Teachers—VERY LIBERAL. Specimen copies sent free for examination.

Prof. Orr, the Superintendent of Education for Georgia, says of them:

Messrs. J. W. Burke & Co., Macon, Ga.—GENTLEMEN: I have given to the Sterling Series of School Books, which you have had the kindness to leave with me, such examination as the limited amount of leisure at my command has allowed. With several books of the series I was already familiar, having added greatly to the interest of several public exhibitions, while engaged in active school work, by selections from their pages. While there ought not to be anything offensively sectional in our school literature, I must be allowed to say that it is with feelings of both pleasure and pride that I find in the pages of these books so liberal a recognition of Southern talent. I am glad, too, to learn that their publication is to be transferred to our own State. Southern independence will be soonest achieved by producing, as far as possible, every necessary for the supply of all our wants, both material and mental, upon our own soil. I will only add that I would be pleased to see the books extensively used.

Respectfully yours,
GUSTAVUS J. ORR,
State School Commissioner.

"SPERM LUBRICATOR."

E. H. ATLANTA:

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1872.

Notice.

We have but one General Traveling Agent—Col Thomas M. Acton.

Settled.

Settle, of North Carolina, is at last settled. Governor Caldwell has appointed him Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of that State. Settle resigned this position to accept the mission to Peru.

☞ The Air Line Railroad will be completed from here to Charlotte in a few weeks, and from here to Atlanta in a few months. It is being pressed with great energy to its completion.—Greenville Correspondence of the Columbia Union.

The Kimball House.

A correspondent of a California paper writing from Atlanta, speaks of the Kimball here under Col. Nichols' superb management as being the best kept hotel in the South.

He in particular compliments the magnificent table kept at this royal house.

Personal.

We had the pleasure of meeting Col. John W. H. Underwood, of Rome, yesterday. This gentleman is being very vigorously pushed by his friends for the United States Senate. He is one of the most effective speakers in the State and has been a Democratic worker. In 1868, and in the late canvass, he did efficient work for the Democracy.

School of Mines.

We have the pleasure of giving this morning the bill introduced in Congress by that excellent representative, Colonel W. P. Price, establishing a school of mines at Dahlonega.

It is a measure of large importance to the State and will prove a most material benefit. Georgia's unexampled mineral resources constitute one of the chief among her many valuable resources of wealth, and we apprehend that no project could be so potent in developing them as this.

The work is a noble one, and we wish Col. Price every success in carrying through to consummation what he has had the practical ability to conceive and inaugurate.

The Constitution.

Our readers will note that notwithstanding the pressure of some twenty-five or thirty new advertisements, we still furnish them with about sixteen columns of reading matter—including four or five columns of local. If necessary, we will enlarge the Constitution before decreasing the amount of reading matter. Our circulation, advertising patronage, and book and job business are increasing at a rate never before experienced in its history. The building now occupied, and built expressly to meet our wants, is crowded to the extent of its capacity, from the first to the fifth floor. Fortunately, we have secured another site, the most eligible corner site now in Atlanta, upon which we shall erect a new building, when necessary.

☞ South Carolina's new ruler, Governor Moses, in his inaugural, draws this mournful picture of the desolation in that State:

Yet the face of the emigrant is turned away from our State, and capital, which sets labor in motion and creates the manufactures which contribute to the comfort and elevation of man, shrinks back from us as if the seals of pestilence were broken and vials emptied out on this beautiful land of ours. Hence nearly three-fourths of our vast territorial area, embracing not less than 36,000 square miles, lie fallow to-day.

No change is likely to occur until the blacks, who are largely in the majority in that State, learn by years more of pecuniary misfortune that such men as Moses and his gang of public plunderers should be consigned to obscurity instead of positions of power and influence.

A Specimen Carpet-bagger.

It is coming to light that John Patterson, the new South Carolina United States Senator, is altogether a superb specimen of the genus carpet-bagger. He is a Pennsylvanian and a protege of old Simon Cameron. He was editor of the Harrisburg Telegraph. In 1864 he ran for Congress in the 19th Pa. District, and was too tough a case to get elected. During the war he was a party to those corrupt mule war contracts of Cameron that resulted in Cameron's expulsion from Lincoln's cabinet.

Having grazed the penitentiary at home, he moved to South Carolina, hunting a new field for his played out capacities of plunder. He has been for years preying on South Carolina, and has feathered his nest well. If he has failed to participate in any scheme of robbery it is not known.

Having gobbled large moneys, he became ambitious. Usually the cupidity and ambition of the carpet-bagger run together. The one helps the other. Lust of money and place are correlative sentiments and cooperative co-adjutors. Patterson was an exception. He stole money. Then bought place. Sharp knave.

When he became ambitious he set cleverly to work. He went to consult Cameron. That arc demagogue wanted some [illegible]ls in the United States Senate. He and his kin raised—so gossip hath it—$30,000 to help Patterson buy his election. Patterson with his big pile conspicuously blaring, entered the field. He flourished his money, and to purpose. He spent $50,000 at from $500 to $1,000 a head, for votes, and floated in like an omnipotent epizootic.

Elliott, the black aspirant saw defeat for himself in Patterson's eloquent and persuasive money bags, and laid a trap. He made some of his legislative friends take Patterson's ducats, and as soon as the election was over they swore charges against the triumphant Patterson for bribery.

Old Orr was for Patterson, and he has his reward in his appointment as minister to Russia. Thus the filthy and sickening drama of Southern Radical corruption has run on in the fiery glorious old commonwealth of the Calhouns and McDuffies.

But Patterson has carried himself characteristically under the charge of bribery. These lofty Radical scamps take an arrest for a black crime, like oysters on the half shell—with seeming gusto. The fellow converted the humiliation into a scene of triumph. Released by habeas corpus from arrest by a handy Radical magistrate, his delighted supporters carried him on their shoulders to the first rum shop, and the exultant senator elect yelled, "d—m the expense; open a hundred bottles of champagne."

Some of the man's sayings are apothegms in their sententious rascality and shrewdness. Quoth this cute knave to some lugubrious vaticinator who remarked that Carolina was ruined, "give us the State, and we'll show that it can stand a heap more squeezing." Felicitous vagabond!

But the funniest of all the harlequinism of this whole phosphorescent farce, is the innocent verdency with which that worthy Democratic newspaper, the Charleston News, eloquently appeals to the honor of the United States Senate to preserve its dignity and require Patterson's innocence of the bribery charge to be established before it admit him. Audaciously green goose! That is very good. A body that is disgraced by Cameron, Morton, Nye, Pomeroy, and that ilk, asked to be squeamish.

The News will be the death of the Senate yet.

Georgia Finances.

The New York Chronicle has seen the statement of Georgia finances given by us a few days back, furnished by Treasurer Angier, and it predicated thereon a very gratifying compliment to Georgia solvency and a very unnecessary homily on Georgia's culpability in its refusal to pay Bullock's illegal bonds, because she is able to do so without bankrupting the State.

The Bulletin states this creditable fact.

"There are few States which can make a better exhibit of financial resources and moderate taxation."

It will be very hard to remove the moral effect of such a statement on the financial world. We apprehend that not even a diatribe against us for refusing to pay void bonds negotiated on notice of their invalidity can do this.

It must not be forgotten that the Bulletin very much damaged its influence as a financial adviser of our State by its culpable championship of Clews, which, by Clew's own admissions, was shown to have been obtained reprehensibly, if not corruptly, as we have no disposition to charge.

It is a matter of immense bother to some of the New York capitalists and their organs that they signally fail in forcing Georgia into an acceptance of illegal obligations by a threatened ostracism from the worlds monetary markets thatthey seem disposed, but are yet unable to accomplish.

Georgia's recognized securities still obstinately stay up, and when offered for sale bring higher prices than any other Southern State securities. The holders of our good bonds will persist in sticking to them, and punctually drawing an interest always forthcoming, and refusing to part with them for nothing.

It is a terrible case of perverseness, and the Clews crowd are evidently largely amazed that such a state of things continues in spite of them.

Not to do the Bulletin any injustice, we lay before our readers its suggested plan of settlement of the Brunswick and Albany Railroad muddle:

1. The State shall assume the indebtedness on the $1,880,000 Gold Bonds issued to the Brunswick and Albany Railroad in exchange for the Second Mortgage Bonds of that Company, in consideration of the completion of the road to its terminus at Eufaula.

2. The First Mortgage bondholders shall surrender the State guarantee upon all their bonds.

3. In consideration of this surrender of guarantee, the State shall issue to the road, $1,000,000 gold-bearing bonds, to be used for equipping the line, the State paying interest on the same for a moderate period—say two to four years—after which the road shall assume the interest on said bonds; th[illegible] to be secured by a mortgage on all equipments of the road purchased by State aid.

4. It might facilitate negotiations with the State, were the holders of the $1,880,000 gold bonds to surrender their coupons to the State up to the time of the completion of the road.

The advantage to the holders of the gold bonds would be that their bonds would become a valid State obligation. The holders of the First Mortgage Bonds would be compensated for the surrender of the State guarantee by an addition of $1,000,000 to the State contributions to the road and by having the line placed in a condition in which it could earn regular interest on its obligations. The advantage to the State would be that by assuming the responsibility for $2,880,000 of gold bonds, it would wipe out the stigma of repudiation upon $5,100,000 of indebtedness.

Pinchbeck.

Not counterfeit jewelry are we writing about, reader, but of something akin to it.

Cuffee is looking up. And it must be confessed that the African is manifesting qualities that mark saliently a certain sort of very decided manhood.

Pinchbeck, the fellow in Louisiana, who has so out-generalled the daring and astute Warmoth, is a negro. He seems to have brains and pluck, and is undoubtedly as smart as he is bold and wicked. The fellow can be no common man. It requires no ordinary capacity to euchre a body of carpet-baggers. Usually in all their Southern operations they have manipulated the home element that has aided them. And where there has been a division of spoils it is the white part that has shared. But this fellow Pinchbeck is an exception. He has laid his hand on the flesh-pots from the start. He has been elected Lieutenant-Governor, and Congressman at large, and now has, by a bold and clever stroke of genius, grasped the gubernatorial baton. It is no ordinary achievement. The nerve, the management, the subtle intrigue, the audacity and ability needed to engineer a conspiracy like this show a remarkable character.

Perhaps the most significant feature of the whole plot is Pinchbeck's account of the attempt by Warmoth to bribe him. He says Warmoth and Mr. Weed, of the New Orleans Times, came to his house at midnight and offered him $50,000 to sustain Warmoth.

Pinchbeck avers that he asked time to consider the proposition. Reflection convinced him that he could not virtuously accept it. He therefore declined.

Mr. Weed denies the matter as far as he is concerned. One would have supposed that the noble Pinchbeck would have been dismayed at this exposure of his fabrication. He was equal to the occasion. He arose in the Senate and stated that it was due to Mr. Weed and his own dignity and feelings to say that Weed was not present.

All of which goes to show that the redoubtable Pinchbeck, colored though he be, hath proven an apt pupil of his skilful tutors, the carpet-baggers, and possesses a genius for rascality of the very first order, that must elevate him to the first rank among the successful Southern Radical celebrities of the Reconstruction era of American politics.

For the Little People.

Several months ago a little boy named Seger became interested in the children of the Howard mission, and determined to do what he could for them. It is not much, apparently, a boy of seven years can accomplish in this direction, but he went to work with a will, saved the pennies given him, ran errands, and picked up bits of iron and sold them. On Saturday he opened his treasure box and found therein $2 83, with which he bought a broken lock pistol, and has 28 cents left. So much for perseverance.

☞ A horse drover now at Selma, Alabama, writes from that place under date of the 5th inst. to the Nashville Union as follows:

"I am here with sixty head of mules and horses, all sick. I could not sell the horse in Alabama for $25 now. My first stock has been here seventeen days, and up to this time there is no improvement in the malady. I have some that I fear may die, but the deaths so far are comparatively few. The disease has created a great panic throughout the country, and there will be no market here before February or March, and not then unless the country is relieved of the epizootic.

[illegible]

The receipts this week are 122,000 bales; 1,000 more than last year, and 33,000 less than two years since. It is likely the receipts for next week will be about 185,000 bales, compared with 130,000 last year, and 130,000 the year before.

The receipts at the interior towns 35,000 bales, as compared with 4[illegible],000 last year, and 48,000 the year before. This week has been the coldest of the season. The thermometer has averaged 40 degrees at noon; but for five days the average has been only 32 degrees at noon. The weather has been clear and pleasant one day, clear and cold two days, and cloudy and cold four days. No rain. One inch of snow fell one night. The weather has been so cold that the snow, which fell three days ago, is still lying unmelted in the shade.

The market in New York this week has been firm, with medium sales, and a rise of ¼ of a cent in the price, caused by a falling off in the receipts, and a firm Liverpool market. At the close the market was dull, caused by a very tight money market, dullness of exchange, and lower gold. We do not expect to see the price for middlings in New York, below 19¼ again this cotton year, but some of our friends expect lower prices in January, or as soon as the rivers of the West rise to the head of navigation.

Our opinion is that we shall have dry weather and but very little rain for a month to come; and by the time the rivers of the West do rise, the railroads will have taken nearly all the cotton from the head waters of these rivers; and, even if there is some left, it will all come down in two weeks after the rivers rise, and the cotton on the Atlantic coast will be so well drained by that time that it will not materially affect the receipts. The receipts have been too small this week, and must not be taken as proof that they will fall off from this time forward.

Our estimate is that 43 per cent. of the crop has been received—making total crop 3,500,000.

The receipts at the interior towns this week are only 75 per cent. of last year; except Memphis, which is 50 per cent. of the total; and from this time forward the receipts at Memphis may be the same as the other six towns together. If this should be true the total crop will be smaller than our estimate. There is no doubt but the epizootic has had some effect on the receipts, but not so much as many suppose, as almost every planter has oxen, and they have taken the place of the horses and mules; also, mules have not suffered nearly so much as horses, and as the disease has come South it has been much lighter than it was North. We think the principal cause of the falling off of the receipts this week is because the cotton movement in all respects—picking, ginning, and delivering at market—is from ten days to two weeks earlier than the last two years. We have noticed all the fall that the movement has compared with the next week instead of the present week. We notice that the shipments coastwise have fallen off very much the past week. This shows more confidence among planters, and if continued, will cause the stock at New York to be smaller than usual; which will cause more confidence in that market.

The Liverpool market has been firm with larger sales this week, and a rise in the price of 1-16 of a penny for spot. This appearance of the Liverpool market is deceptive to the casual observer. The rise in three weeks has been but 1-8 of a penny, equal to 1-4 of a [illegible] pound in spot cotton; while the actual rise in cotton to be delivered in December has been, in three weeks, 5-8 of a penny, equal to 1¼ cent a pound. There is a rise in Liverpool of fully 1 cent a pound, that few persons know of. The cause of this has been that Manchester spinners were bare of stock, there was a very small supply of good cotton in Liverpool; so holders would not sell spot cotton except at full prices, but speculators believing from the excessively large receipts that our crop would be a large one, were ready to sell future shipments at from ¾ to 1¼ cent a pound below spot prices; expecting, as soon as large exports were made to Liverpool, spot prices would decline very fast; but the active demand from the Continent and our own spinners have checkmated this very reasonable expectation; and as the exports to Liverpool this week are only 30,000 bales, compared with 71,000 of the same week last year, it is likely they will lose money on the bear side of the market this winter. We do not expect Liverpool to decline below 10 pence for many months to come.

The actual supply of cotton in the world is over 400,000 bales less than last year at the same time, as European spinners hold that much less than last year this time, then being well stocked up, now almost bare.

The Egyptian crop, which appeared very flattering two months ago, has been injured so much that it is likely the turn-out will be less than last year, and the quality of the receipts of the new crop is very poor. Egyptian cotton is next in quality to American, and any injury to that crop affects the price of our cotton. The total increase of stocks in the United States over last year is only 40,000 bales, all of which is in Galveston.

We think there is no danger of so large a surplus of goods being manufactured for the coming year as to depress the price, as the demand is increasing fully 5 per cent. every year, thus requiring 300,000 bales more cotton every year to supply the constantly increasing demand for cotton goods. When cotton goods are high, woolen and linen goods are substituted in the place of cotton; but new woolen goods are so very high that the poorer classes cannot afford to buy them at all. This naturally increases the demand for cotton goods, and likely will increase the demand for this year 2 per cent., thus requiring the product of 100,000 bales more cotton than last year. Then we have a demand for 400,000 bales more cotton than last year, at the same prices. Of the cotton grown in the world, there may not be any rise in the price; if it is not, we expect the price of cotton and goods to rise until the consumption of goods is reduced; and then there will be enough to supply the demand. Our spinners have taken from the ports the past five weeks 110,000 bales—22,000 per week, just what they need to keep the mills running. They have probably taken in the same time 3,000 bales per week overland, and this goes to increase their stocks. Our correspondents at northern mills all agree that the stocks of manufactured goods on hand are smaller than at any time for several years past, and all their goods are in strong demand at full prices.

Many of our friends have asked us, the past week, "is it a good time to buy futures?" We would advise all persons who are not regularly in the cotton trade, to let it alone. As in everything else, a man has to be educated in it to make money, and it requires several years, and a large amount of money to complete a man's education in the cotton trade so that he will make more than he will lose in a season. If a man has a good business or can find anythingelse to do our advice is to let cotton alone. We do not expect any one to profit by this advice, for the plan of operation of all new beginners has been, and will be again this winter, to go around every few days and ask if it is a good time to buy, until the price has gone up four or five cents a pound, and all old dealers have made their pile. Then they will go in and buy and lose all the money they can raise. Those of our friends who followed our advice for the past ten weeks, will make money, and it is not yet too late to buy some more.

Important Georgia Measure.

In the House of Representatives December 9, 1872—Hon. Mr. Price's Bill to Establish a National School of Mines in the North Georgia Agricultural College, Dahlonega, Ga.; to Provide for the Selection of a Faculty; and to Appropriate Sums of Money Therefor.

Whereas, the North Georgia Agricultural College, formerly the United States branch mint, located in a region abounding in rich and valuable mines of gold, copper, iron and other ores, will go into operation in January, 1873, and will be controlled and managed as required by act of Congress approved April 20, 1871, and also under the provisions of the act of Congress approved July 2, 1862, which provides for colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts, and the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions in life; and

Whereas, it is the duty of the Government, while providing schemes for the promotion and development of the interests of the agriculture and the mechanic arts, to provide, at the same time, the means for the ready development of the immense hidden wealth of the United States, which can be done in no other way so well as by imparting to the youths of the country a knowledge of those sciences which tend directly to the proper development of our immense mineral resources, which hitherto have received but meager aid from the government: thererore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That a school of mines be, and the same is hereby, in the North Agricultural College, at Dahlonega, Georgia, in the building heretofore owned by the United States, and recently donated to the trustees of the said college by act of Congress, the said trustees agreeing to the same; which shall be presided over by a faculty consisting of three professors, who shall be selected as hereinafter provided, wherein shall be taught the following sciences, to-wit: mineralogy, metallurgy, mining, engineering, analytical and applied chemistry, geology, and such other branches as are related to said sciences; the instruction in these several branches to be divided between said professors as may be deemed proper and most advantageous to said school.

Sec. 2. That the sum of ——— dollars be, and the same is, annually appropriated for the payment of the salaries of said faculty, the amount to be paid each, and the manner of paying the same, to be under the direction of the regents of the Smithsonion Institution, by whom said professors shall be elected and chosen, at such times and in such manner as they may deem best; and all vacancies and changes in the faculty of said school shall be filled by the said regents.

Sec. 3. That pupils of proper age shall be entitled to admission into said school of mines from any State or Territory of the United States, free of all tuition fees whatever; but nothing herein contained shall prevent the regents of the Smithsonian Institution from adopting rules and regulations for the government of said school, and determining the age at which pupils may enter, as well as other requirements for admission to the same.

Sec. 4. That there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of ten thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended by the said regents in the erection of a laboratory and the purchase of a suitable chemical and philosophical apparatus for the use of said school.

Sec. 5. That it shall be the duty of the President of the faculty of said school to make an annual report of the operations of said school, or oftener if deemed necessary, to the regents of the Smithsonian Institution, who shall incorporate in their report to Congress the progress made by said school of mines, as well as any other information of a scientific or useful character in relation to said school.

Sec. 6. That before said school shall go into operation, the trustees of the North Georgia Agricultural College shall convey to the regents of the Smithsonian Institution the use of so much of said North Georgia Agricultural College building as may be needed for the school of mines, to be kept under the control of said regents as long as said school shall be maintained under the provisions of this act.

A TENNESSEE TRAGEDY.

An Intercepted Elopement—The Young Man Killed—A Death-bed Marriage.

Some three years ago, a young man residing in Marshall county, Tennessee, was engaged to be married to a young lady who lived in the neighborhood. The match was strongly opposed by the girl's family, her two brothers being especially bitter in their opposition. However, all this had no effect upon the lovers. As it was manifestly impossible for the marriage to take place at the young lady's home, an elopement was agreed upon, but their plans were frustrated upon two different occasions. The third attempt was more successful, and one dark, cloudy night, the lover rode to a place designated, found his promised wife awaiting him, took her on the horse behind him and rode rapidly away. The lovers naturally concluded their troubles were over, and that in a short time the ceremony which would bind them to each other forever would be pronounced. They rode along and had reached a point within a quarter of a mile of the young man's home, when two men sprang out from their place of concealment near the roadside, and called to the young couple to halt, which command was not obeyed. The two men thereupon fired at the young man on the horse, who rode on a short distance and then fell heavily to the ground, dragging the girl with him. The two men—who proved to be the young lady's brothers—came up and beat the wounded man about the head and chest in a brutal manner, he begging and pleading with them to spare him, as he felt he had already received his death-wound. The girl was ordered by her brothers to get on her lover's horse and return home with them, but she refused to leave her lover's side.

After cruelly beating their sister, the unnatural brothers rode off home, where they were asked if they had "killed that fellow" by their mother, to which they replied that they had not, but that they had "fixed him" so that he would die.

The young man who had been shot was carried to a relative's house, where he lingered in great pain for forty-eight hours before death came to relieve him of his sufferings.

The young girl having announced her desire to marry her dying lover, a Justice of the Peace was brought to the house the night of the shooting, and the ceremony which united the living to the dying was pronounced.

Just before breathing his last the unfortunate man called his sister and wife to his bedside and solemnly charged them to remain together as long as they lived, to which request a ready assent was given. He also exacted a promise from his wife that she would never return to her own family, or have anything to do with them in the future.

Meanwhile the guilty brothers had made their escape, but a vigorous pursuit resulted in their being captured near Jackson, Mississippi. They were taken to Lewisburg, in Marshall county, where they were lodged in jail, but after a few months' confinement they were enabled by friends to make their escape, but were again captured by Sheriff Champ, in Texas, the second arrest having been made about a month ago, a reward of a thousand dollars having been offered for their apprehension.

They are now lodged in their old quarters in the Lewisburg jail, on the charge of murder, and will be tried at the first session of the County Court.

The wife of the murdered man, their own sister, has expressed a determination to do all in her power to secure their conviction, and as she was present during the tragedy, her testimony will be of vital importance.

The foregoing facts are furnished by a sister of the young man who was killed.

A RARE SPECTACLE.

The Frost King's Carnival—A Natural "Black Crook" in Alabama Woods.

Tuesday His Royal Highness Jack Frost, and the avant courier, Prince Sleet, to say nothing of His Eastern Excellency, Boreas, all deported themselves in fine style about our ears and our chimney-pots. But while we in the city had only the broken fragments and dull shadows of his carnival pageant, the Great Original Frost King treated our country neighbors to one of those rare and beautiful spectacles he so seldom deigns to "put on" when he makes up his mind to "travel the Southern circuit."

Yesterday morning at daylight, when the curtains of clouds rolled up on the scene, to the music of Boreas' horn, the whole stage of back country above Whistler was one grand and gorgeous scene of frost-work that no effect of lint and lama fringe and limelight could begin to equal. Low down the trunk of every tree was bare and wet, looming darkly up out of the warm, moist earth, that showed no signs of freezing. But higher up the touch of the Frost King had cased trunk and limbs and leaves in one clear and brilliant coating, crystalline and dazzling. Great pines stood hoary-headed and tall, sheeted with their glittering and sparkling armor, while their waist were bare and their great feet warm and wet. Among them those of smaller growth were bowed under their load of sparkling ice, or dainty creamy frost-work; and the swayed heads in many cases met, forming in novel and beautiful arches and bowers of ice. Between Citronelle and Whistler especially the scene was truly magnificent. The warm, dark soil on all the level stretches showed clear and smooth, only the taller grasses and ferns being ice-tipped and bearded by the frost; while over them met or swayed the frost-bowered branches of the pines; or the giants towered, ice-covered and armored with sleety mail. Around their feet were strewed many torn and coated limbs, broken down by the weight: for the frost is a grand scenic artist, but he does not spare his materials. All night long could be heard the rattling of his icy hammer as he "put up the properties" for his grand spectacle; and a frequent loud, sharp report told how he broke what would not bend and threw away all the material too weak to serve in his rare and beautiful show.

It may be years before such another peep is granted by the Frost King behind the scenes of his Grand Northern White Crook. He seldom comes South and we therefore give him all the honors due his great rank as a distinguished foreigner.—Mobile Register.

☞ The largest brewery in the world is that of Barclay, Perkins & Co., of London. They use annually 18,000 bales of hops, and make one million barrels of ale and porter. Their place covers twelve acres in the heart of London, for which they recently refused the sum of $20,000,000 per acre. Barclay, Perkins & Co. use nine thousand pounds of hops and twelve thousand five hundred bushels of malt daily. They make one thousand seven hundred and sixty barrels of beer at a brewing. Their porter is stowed in one hundred and seventy two large tubs, each holding from fifteen hundred to three thousand barrels! Why they have seven casks, called the "seven sisters," which hold thirty-six hundred barrels each. They are fifty feet high and thirty feet in diameter. Their draft horses are the marvel of all London. They have one hundred and sixty-two of the splendid nineteen hand horses, seven hundred dollars apiece. They are so heavy as to wear out an inch thick horse shoe in one or two weeks.

☞ There will be some curiosity to see the bust Story, the sculptor, is making of Beethoven, of whom there have been numberless pictures and busts, all differing from each other. It is said Story is not making an ideal handsome portrait of Beethoven. He is copying the mast, which was taken from Beethoven's face, exactly in all its homely fidelity, giving it vitality through expression. It is a grim, ugly face, with a decided mulatto type, especially in the nose. Thayer, the biographer of Beethoven, says, Beethoven looked like a little ugly mulatto; he was very short, had a yellow skin, broad, spread-out nose, and projecting teeth, over which his heavy lips shut. The mask gives this faithfully, with a slight Indian look, about the cheek bone. Beethoven had also that concentrated expression in the eye, brow and mouth of morbid discontent, which a face of mixed blood is apt to wear when part of the blood is ignoble, and the brains akin to Divinity."

Personal Journalism.—A great deal of twaddle is uttered by some country newspapers just now over what they call personal journalism. They say that now that Mr. Bennett, Mr. Raymond and Mr. Greeley are dead, the day for personal journalism is gone by, and that impersonal journalism will take its place. That appears to mean a sort of journalism in which nobody will ask who is the editor of a paper or the writer of any class of article, and nobody will care.

Whenever in the newspaper profession a man rises up who is original, strong, and bold enough to make his opinions a matter of consequence to the public there will be personal journalism; and whenever newspapers are conducted only by commonplace individuals whose views are of no interest to the world and of no consequence to anybody there will be nothing but impersonal journalism.

And this is the essence of the whole question.—N. Y. Sun.

☞ The present condition of the Credit mobilier affair seems to be this: That Congressman Oakes Ames will not deny the authorship of the implication letters which Col McComb published; that he did offer the stock to several Congressmen, which offer was accepted in some cases and declined in others; and that the memorandum of names made by Colonel McComb on the back of one of the Ames letters was taken down, not as indicating those who had actually received stock, but some of those to was to be, or had been offered. We see by some of the special dispatches that the Congressional Committee investigating the alleged bribery are sitting with closed doors, bet that enough of the testimony has leaked out to show that prominent parties are implicated, and that some extraordinary developments may be expected.

A Musical Duel.—The Paris papers tell of a duel on a piano between two musicians. They played for forty-eight hours without food or drink. Having commenced with pieces of a sedate character, they passed on to waltzes and thence to operatic music. One had played the Miserere in "Il Trovatore" five hundred and eighty times, and was commencing the five hundred and eighty-first performance of that piece, when he sank to rise no more. The other was conveyed to the hospital, his life being despaired of, and the four seconds are suffering from mental aberration.

☞ It is now hinted that the friends of Frank Blair were at the bottom of the Electoral College muddle in favor of Hendricks and against Gratz Brown, their object being to disgrace Gratz in Missouri, and to set him aside as Frank's possible competitor for the United States Senate.—Courier-Journal

Grand Jury Presentments.

STATE OF GEORGIA, COUNTY OF FULTON.

Grand Jury Room, Atlanta, Georgia, December 14th, 1872.

The Grand Jury for the week ending 13th December, 1872, in closing their labors, respectfully call the attention of the Court and country, to what appears to them to be a defect or omission in the Criminal Law of this State against carrying concealed weapons, inasmuch as it forbids the carrying of "pistols, dirks, sword in cane, spear, bowie-knife, or any other kind of knife used as an offensive weapon," but omits to add the words "or other deadly weapons."

We are informed by the Solicitor that the carrying of a "slung shot" or brass knucks," or any other deadly weapon not enumerated in the law is not, at present, an indictable offense.

If this construction of the law is correct, we respectfully submit that the law should, as soon as possible, be amended so as to forbid the carrying of any and all species of deadly weapons concealed upon the person.

It has come to our knowledge, during this service, that in issuing Marriage Licenses, it is the practice in the Ordinary's office to ask no questions of the applicant as to the status of the parties, except the single one as to their age; leaving the more important ones of consanguinity, race and color, to be inquired into by the officiating Minister or Justice, and throwing upon them all responsibility on these points, and this for fear of giving offense to the applicants. We find also that no record is made or kept of applications for license to marry, nor of the license when issued, until and unless it is returned to the office executed. Thus, there is no inquiry, no record, no check, and the object of the law is defeated. The Code expressly makes it the duty of the Ordinary to keep a book for the "Record of all Marriage Licenses and the returns thereon." This has not been done, except as to record of those returned. We think this a matter of some importance, as the succession to property might depend upon the evidence to be found in the books of the Ordinary.

We present as a most serious grievance the onerous tax upon the time of the citizens of Atlanta in performing jury duty almost continuously, in addition to the burdens they have to bear in common with other citizens of the State, and express the hope that the wisdom of our Legislature will devise some measure for our relief, either by summary punishment of crime, or by abridging the right of interminable continuances and appeals, taxing us with constant support and feeding of felons and rogues, inflicting the penalties of crime upon the community instead of the criminal.

dec 1-1m R. T. SMILIE.

MR. SMILIE may have bored the officers of the Georgia State Agricultural Association out of a certificate of some kind in favor of the sewing machine he represents, but the report of the committee, as found below, shows the facts of the case:

I dislike very much to call the veracity of any one in question, and will give Mr. Smilie the credit of believing what he claims. He has repeated it so often, I really believe he thinks it is true that he was awarded something.

It is due Mr. Johnson to state that I do not desire to question his veracity in the card published above, as I have always found him gentlemanly and polite. It was by his courtesy that I made the copy of the official report as published above, of the only Committee who examined the construction of Sewing Machines. R. J. WILES

Book Notices.

The Ordeal for Wives. By MRS. ANNIE EDWARDS. Publishers, Sheldon & Company, 677 Broadway, New York. For sale at Lynch's Book-store, Whitehall street, Atlanta. In paper.

This is rather a queer work. It is called an Ordeal for Wives, and it certainly gets up a considerable ordeal for all the women it marries—and they number at least four or five. Each one marries the wrong man, that is, not the man loved, and in the nature of things there must be something of an "ordeal." The real heroine, however, marries the man she loves after a strange career of love-making. Her character is a noble one and is finely drawn. The character of worldly, fashionable English women is severely portraitured, and may the Lord have mercy on them, if they are really so trifling and wicked. There are some good things, some indifferent things, and some downright nonsensical things in this book. But the moral is so admirable and true, we are constrained to copy it. "Reader, if you are a man of fortune and desire the assistance of a young woman in getting rid of that fortune, dress extravagantly, grace the head of your table," etc. etc., you can pick up the material very readily in large cities. But, "if you are a man of education and so inconceivably single-minded as to wish to possess a woman who shall be bound to you for life, who shall work with and for you, be your house-keeper, your intellectual companion and your truest, tenderest friend; you wont get these in large cities out of the classes from whom men take their wives." Perhaps this is a little too sweeking. At any rate you could find her in small cities about the size of Eufaula, Ala., if you would listen to several Atlanta young men, one of whom is supposed to be at present in that lovely town.

Dick Travers Abroad; By Miss ADELAIDE F. SAMUELS. Publishers, Lee & Shepherd, Boston. For sale at Phillips & Crew's book store.

This is a series of four little volumes for young people, bound most beautifully in green and gold, each volume complete in itself. The different titles are, "Palm Land," "The Lost Star," "On the Wave," and "Little Cricket." We have reed "Palm Land" and, if the other volumes are as pure and interesting, we can heartily recommend them to our young people. The travels are most interestingly told. The series is a gem.

Little Canary Series. By MRS. M. A. OSGOOD. Boston; Lee & Shepard, Publishers.

These books are bound, like the above, very beautifully. There are four volumes; we have only read one. That satisfied us. There is a prevalent affectation among Northern authors to introduce the negro into their writings, that make them, with their sickening sentimentality on the subject, quite disgusting to Southern readers. The volume read actually gives the life, courtship and marriage of a negro boy True. the story is told in the least possibly objectionable manner, but we of the South prefer the North to monopolize this sort of literature—we have no taste for negro love stories, negro heroes and heroines.

Alumni Publications. Published at Philadelphia.

These are publications of the "Associate Alumni of the General Theological Episcopal Church in the United States," 1872. The first is a sermon by the Right Reverend C. F. Robertson, D. D., Bishop of Missouri, delivered in Grace church, Baltimore, St. Luke's day, October 18, 1872.

The second is a sermon delivered by Rev. A. T. Freeman, Presbyter, in the church of the Heavenly Rest, New York, June 15, 1872, on the subject, "The Spirit of God the Bulwark against Atheism."

The third is an essay on the "Perils of the Ministry" by Rev. Arthur Rich.

These productions are very learned, edifying and interesting.

Biography of Distinguished Women. By Mrs. Hale. New York; Harper & Brothers, publishers, 327 to 335 Pearl street.

This is a most admirable and valuable work. As we have already reviewed it, it is not necessary to say more at this time. The book is a fine contribution to historical literature.

Notes on Music.

We are in receipt of quite a number of pieces of sheet music. We will notice a few of them.

Un Jour Printemps. Published by J. L. Peters, New York. Phillips & Crew, Atlanta.

May Morning Schottish—a bright and joyous composition.

Blighted. New York. C. H. Ditson & Co, publishers. Composed by J. R. Thomas.

As indicated by the name, this partakes decidedly of the plaintive. Indeed, it is piteous, in word and music. It imparts some most excellent soothing to all blighted folks. This is the refrain:

"Sorrow then no more, fair angel,
Give o'er that burning grief,
Place thy trust in God above thee,
And He will send relief."

But the safest plan is, not to get blighted. It is very imprudent, to say the least of it.

Blue Bird! By J BRANDIS. Philadelphia. Lee & Walker, Publishers—Phillips & Crew, Atlanta.

A polka mazourka, and a very indifferent one. It is to be hoped that the young lady, to whom it is dedicated, has a higher opinion of it than we have.

"Ethel Dreems." New York. Published by J. L. Peters.

Song and chorus. The name suggests the character—dreamy. A vacant air and sad, sad words.

The Belle of Saratoga. New York. J. L. Peters, 599 Broadway—at Phillips & Crew's, Atlanta.

We class this in the second grade. It is a polka.

Who's at My Window. Philadelphia, Lee & Walker, 922 Chestnut street, publishers. Phillips & Crew, Atlanta.

This is a beautiful concert song

"Who's at my window? At break of day,
Minstrel or lover, say, oh say!
Sweet thro' my dreaming cometh a strain,
Who is the singer? Dream I in vain!"

Love's Glance Never Dies. Boston; Oliver, Ditson & Co., publishers.

This is a song with chorus. We have made a calculation. Phillips & Crew will have a rush from some fifty swains for this piece of music. There are about fifty in Atlanta at present holding to that doctrine. How long they will hold to it, we are not sure, as some of them are to be married within a month or two. It is enthusiastic over "looks expressing what words cannot," and "telling love in sighs." The publishers have doubtless sent copies to those bashful youths, Harris, of the Savannah News, and Gorman, of the Talbotton Standard.

Save one Bright Crown for Me. FROM J. L. PETERS, New York.

Song and Chorus—A Sabbath melody. And a very sweet one!

The Military Style. From LEE & WALKER, Philadelphia.

A Comic Song. Rather ordinary!

The Heart's Desire. C. H. DITSON & Co, New York.

A mazurka. We were told by a young lady acquainted with this mazurka, that it was "heartless music." If the reader wants to know what that is, the music must be tried, as we can not tell him.

"Sweetest." New York: J. L. PETERS, Publisher. Reader, the best for the last. This is a song, and comes up nobly to its name. It is the "sweetest." All this music may be had at Phillips & Crew's book and music store.

DEATH OF JERRY F. GLEN.—Jerry F. Glen, son of Hon. John Glen, and an exemplary young man, died yesterday evening of consumption.

COME TO ATLANTA.—Col. W. S. Grisham, long a well-known prominent citizen of South Carolina has lately established himself in our place, and is now connected in business with our well known and energetic fellow citizen J. M. Born, Jr. It gives us pleasure to extend a welcome to him and we wish him much success in his undertakings.

The Keowee Courier, of Walhalla, S. C., thus speaks of him: Col. W. S. Grisham, a well-known and highly respected citizen of this county, has removed to Atlanta, Ga. Col. G. has been long identified with this particular portion of our county, and has, in an eminent degree, enjoyed the confidence and esteem of our people. His father owned and sold to the German Land Company the large landed estate on which a colony of Germans was planted. The site of the town of Walhalla comprised a part of the land. It was then a poor ridge without a habitation upon it, while now it is occupied by public buildings, private residences, stores, churches and colleges, with a live, enterprising and thrifty population. It was then accessible only by two public roads crossing each other, while now, for ten years, it has enjoyed a steam outlet. Col. G., during all this time, has been a dweller in this neighborood and an eye-witness to these great changes. He was, before the war, a large planter and a man of influence, intelligence and popularity. He has ever been a man of firm convictions and strong prejudices; warm and sincere in friendship, but open and strict in his dislikes. During his citizenship, he was frequently honored with positions of trust and responsibility by the suffrage of the people—having in our better days, besides minor positions been chosen to a seat in the House and Senate from his election district. Apart from personal friendship to us the Courier is indebted to him for many acts of kindness, not the least of which are the interesting sketches of travel published in its columns during his sojourn and sight seeing in the Rocky Mountains. We wish him many friends, success in business and long life in his adopted home.

GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO PURCHASERS!

Rush at the New York Store!

Steinheimer Brothers, at the New York Store, are offering great inducements to purchasers. They offer Dry Goods, of the best styles and qualities, at the lowest possible prices. Of course, people flock to their store to get bargains in good goods. Give them a trial.

THE CATHOLIC FAIR.

Last night was the most exciting evening since the opening of the Fair. The poll for the most popular lady, for a watch and chain, and for the handsomest young lady, for a set of jewelry, was closed at 10 o'clock.

The voting at the close of polls was as exciting as ever witnessed by any one, at our political elections, ladies as well as gentlemen soliciting votes for their friends.

There was three or four ladies contesting for the watch and chain, and only two for the set of jewelry. At the hour of going to press the vote was being counted, so we are unable to name the successful ladies.

END OF THE MALONE CASE.

Verdict of Guilty.

Precisely at 11 o'clock last night, the jury in the case of Malone came out of the room and filed into the jury box. Notwithstanding the lateness of the hour, there were quite a number of persons present. Some minutes elapsed while waiting for the counsel to return to the court room. During this time the prisoner, who, up to this moment, had shown no nervousness whatever, now displayed a little. The Judge directed the names of the jurors called. The verdict was then received from the foreman, and was read "guilty." Thus ends the trial. Malone was not sentenced; sentence will be pronounced next week.

KEEP STRAIGHT AHEAD.—It is ever best to bear in mind that "calumniators may usually be trusted to time and the slow but steady justice of public opinion." Our characters are formed and sustained by ourselves, by our own actions and purposes and not by others. The best code of honor is contained in the injunction, "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." An honest, manly nature may be led into error, but he is as quick to apologise for the wrong. He who would deliberately insult a fellow being, and after a knowledge of the wrong, refuse to make the amend, possesses no nobility of soul. Slanders and idle gossip will die the death of neglect. If what is said about you is true, set yourself right; if it is false, it will die of itself if let alone. Pursue a straight forward path, unswerved by the Scylly of popular applause on the one side, or the Charybdis of censure and detraction on the other. Be afraid of nothing except to do wrong. Remember that as "to the pure all things are pure," so "all seems yellow to the jaundiced eye."

The light, of a pure, honorable and upright life at its close will rise in grandeur and serenity above the clouds and fogs of calumny and malice.

OAK HALL CLOTHING HOUSE.

Where "Good Habits" May be Had.

The advantages of a good fit, and of well made garments are admitted. It is what the people seek. The Oak Hall Clothing House of M. & J. Hirsch offer ready made clothing of the best styles and quality at prices within the reach of all. Now that the holiday season is approaching, go to the Oak Hall Clothing House and supply yourselves with good clothes.

Shooting Affray.

Last night, near the McPherson Barracks, there was an altercation between some negroes and Federal soldiers. The result was that one of the soldiers was seriously, if not fatally, wounded. Colonel Brown, commanding, had two of the negroes arrested and turned over to the civil authorities.

DEGIVE'S.—The Bernard Troupe closed a short and satisfactory engagement at the Opera House last night. We say satisfactory, and we presume so from the actions, merriments and applause of the audience. Miss Lizette Bernard possesses a style of acting that emphatically grows on you, the more you see of her, the more piquant she appears. She has graceful manners on the stage, is pretty, full of life, of action, of a genuine good old fashioned vim, and carries the hearts, as well as judgment of her audience. Mr. D. S. Morris, provoked the mirth of all present to its fullest extent. "Oriana" was repeated by request, and Miss Bernard sustained three characters admirably. Her versability is to be admired. She is a natural actress, and sweet singer, as a dancer, she dances all over, from her toes to the ends of her fingers, every fibre of her body quivering in harmony to the music to which she moves. Other members of the company deserve mention.

JOHN RYAN HEARD FROM.—John Ryan was heard from yesterday by telegram from New York city. He hopes to be home to-morrow with a large and handsome stock of dry goods. He will have an extensive assortment of dress goods offered at prices suited to the times. He has just got through the Custom House a large consignment of black silks, points and valenciennes laces.

Ryan does not believe in keeping goods on his shelves from one season to another. His motto is "quick sales and small profits."

Ryan is heard from in our advertising columns. Now we advise our readers to go and see him for themselves.

SELECT SCHOOL FOR BOYS.—Prof. J. A. Richardson will open a select school for boys on the first Monday in January, on the second floor over D. C. Townsend & Co., corner of Broad and Mitchell streets. Prof. Richardson is a teacher of enlarged experience and acknowledged to be one of the most thorough instructors of the day.

AS THE Christmas Holidays approach, there is a general inquiry for good things. Messrs. Guthman & Haas proclaim through the columns of THE CONSTITUTION that they have on hand a large stock of liquors, including some fine Irish and Scotch whisky and Jamaica rum received direct from the agents. It is claimed that their "Pride of Pennsylvania" rye whisky cannot be surpassed.

JURY ROOM, Atlanta, December 14, 1872.

We, the Grand Jury of Fulton Superior Court for the 10th week of the October term, 1872, hereby tender our thanks to our old and long tried friend, Patrick Fitzgibbon, the faithful and ever attentive keeper of the City Hall, for his kindness and attention.

We know of no man who fills his place better than Patrick Fitzgibbon.

Unanimously adopted.

JAMES ORMOND, Foreman.

JOHN W. COLLIER, Secretary.

HO! FOR MARDI GRAS!—The Atlanta and New Orleans Short Line are perfecting arrangements to accommodate all desiring to attend the Mardi Gras Festival at New Orleans early in February. Pullman's Silver Palace Sleeping Cars will leave Atlanta, morning and evening, going through to New Orleans without change.

FROM the advertisement of Messrs J. M. Born, Jr., & Co., that we call attention to, it will be seen that they have now on hand plenty of genuine Coal Creek coal, and have been enterprising enough to secure themselves against all contingencies, and intend to keep on hand a sufficient supply to satisfy all demands for the same. For a cheap, quick and good fire, call on them.

ATTENTION TALLULAH!—You are ordered to meet at your engine house on Monday night for important business.

G. W. JACK,
President.

LOOK OUT FOR BARGAINS.—L. Z. Sternheimer, Whitehall street, next door to P. Lynch, is selling out at auction at night and at auction prices in the day time, his entire stock of dry goods, clothing, boots, hats, etc.

SEE advertisement of C. C. Hammock. He will sell some valuable property on Peters street at 3 o'clock P. M., Wednesday, December 18.

No use to "wait for the wagon" any longer. The wagons have arrived and are to be found at Anderson & Wells'. From one to four horse wagons can be had. Go and get a wagon and then take a ride.

STRAYED OR STOLEN.—A large clay-bank horse with white mane and tail; has either strayed or been stolen from the premises of Mr. J. H. Downs.

J. F. SHECUT will issue ten thousand copies of the Southern Farm Journal as a Christmas and New Year's number, for free distribution.

MODERN MYSTERIES DISCUSSED.—Rev. W. P. Harrison, D. D. will lecture on Monday and Tuesday nights, at the First Methodist Church, for the benefit of the Young Men's Library, on "Modern Mysteries." These lectures are not repetitions of his first lecture on modern spiritualism. He will examine the Polarity of the Od Force, its relation to somnambulism, clairvoyance, cataleptic clairvoyance, trance, trance coma, dual consciousness, psychomancy and thought reading.

By invitation of the Young Men's Christian Association of Augusta, Dr Harrison lectured there last Thursday and Friday nights. The Augusta Constitutionalist alludes to the first lecture in the following manner:

"It was a full exposition of all the causes tending to the production of the phenomena or mysteries generally known as spiritualism, the lecturer relating several instances tending to prove that the main cause of this spiritual phenomena was electricity—the persons mainly engaged in it being highly surcharged.

He said that before we explain a mystery, we must know that a mystery exists.

Table rapping is a mystery to most people, but is explainable. There is a natural cause for the moving or rapping of tables. The tables used for that purpose are always made of black walnut, and black walnut is a wood most peculiarly susceptible to electric influence, for which reason so-called spiritualists use tables made of that kind of wood for their "spiritualistic" purposes. He explained the breaking of glasses, crockery, &c., in the hands of a person, was the result of electric current, or rather electricity in each case; and he mentioned several instances where glass was broken in his hands, and in a dark room luminous sparks flying from the hair on his head—he being so highly surcharged with electricity.

Withal, the lecture, as a whole, was deeply interesting. There was a very large attendance, considering the weather, and every one appeared to appreciate the lecture in all respects."

The Chronicle & Sentinel says: "The lecture was intensely interesting, and was listened to with the closest attention from first to last. He touched upon the different topics of table rappings, tippings, spirit photographs, strange noises, haunted houses, apparitions, halluncinations, illusions, and wonders of natural magic. The topics were all treated in the ablest manner, and scientific details were dressed in the most attractive garb. Many of the so-called mysteries of spiritualism were lucidly and fully explained, and feats and exhibitions which have puzzled us all so much were clearly shown to be traceable to natural causes. The explanation of what is vulgarly known as "spirit rapping" was alone worth the price of admission. The lecturer's style is graceful, natural and pleasing, and his eloquence of a high order. He has evidently given much time and research to the subject and has made himself master of a vast fund of valuable information and has, so to speak, popularized science.

Let every friend of the Library rally to-morrow night and Tuesday night. Every one who goes to hear Dr. Harrison will not only be benefitting the Library, but be benefitted and instructed themselves.

THE STREET RAILROAD WAR—JUSTICE EXPLAINS AGAIN.—Editors Constitution: I beg leave once more briefly to explain. I learn some party belonging to the Atlanta Street Railroad Company are displeased at the simple remark in the article published a day or two since, that it was hinted that some of them had a finger in the Mitchell heirs enterprise. Now I say once for all, if that remark, or any other made in that communication, is not true, it will readily be retracted. No one was accused directly of having a finger in that affair, but that there had been hints to that effect which I presume will not be hard to establish, should it be necessary.

The article above referred to was written to call public attention to the way the Atlanta Street Railroad Company had acted towards the West End and Atlanta Company recently, in taking possession of a line the latter company had located by the consent of the proper authorities, and to arouse them to the danger of a perpetual monopoly, such as is not now known in this country, nor never was, and I hope never will be. For three or four men in a city of 30,000 inhabitants, and rapidly increasing, to have the power to say where there shall be street railroads and where there shall not be, say who shall walk and who shall ride for all time to come, is what I hope not to see in this land of boasted equal rights.

I don't wish it understood that I consider the W. E. & A. railroad company to be made out of any purer stuff than the Atlanta Company. If they were left to have their own way without competition for a time, they would likely become to be as selfish as the Atlanta Company now seems to be. Men and corporations are all selfish; hence the public interests should be closely guarded, and it is for the people of Atlanta to say whether they will have a healthy competition in street railroads, giving all sections of the city and suburbs a double chance to be accommodated and the value of their property enhanced, or will they prefer what, in my judgment, is obliged in the very nature of things, to be a dangerous monopoly.

JUSTICE.

DEMOCRATIC TRIUMPH.—The municipal election in Atlanta a few days ago, passed off quietly, with the most gratifying result. Notwithstanding the Farrow ring, Colonel Hammock a most worthy and staunch Democrat, was elected by a majority of nearly eight hundred.

The citizens of Atlanta may be assured that Judge Hammock will do his whole duty and protect, so far as he may be able, every interest of the city. The full ticket of Aldermen was elected. From the first ward, the one in which we feel most interested, elected two of her ablest citizens, to-wit: J. F. Morris and Capt. W. H. Brotherton, both merchants and first-class business men, besides being gentlemen of considerable talent, and both identified with Atlanta's interests, and who will most nobly represent the people of the old "First."

We are much gratified at the choice made by the citizens of the 1st Ward, and congratulate them upon having secured the services of two of their best men. Col. Morris has many friends in this section, and married the daughter of our fellow-citizen and townsman, Captain Chapman.—Clayton Times.

AT WORK.—The Dawson Journal says: Rev. T. H. Morgan arrived in our city on Sunday last unheralded, but he being a live man and not ashamed of his calling made known his business to a few of the Baptist brethren and they extended the notice to others resulting in quite a good audience attending the delivery of a very impressive, logical and biblical sermon on Sunday night. We imagine from the twang of his voice, and the traveling out of the old beaten path that he is of foreign extract, and that he has little more vim than is found in most divines. Mr. Morgan is the Superintendent of the Baptist School interest for this part of Georgia, and well does he prove to his hearers the importance of attending to little things and little people. He called on us, and though we were a little more than broke, made us feel it our duty to help along the noble enterprise in which he is engaged. Such men as he know no such word as fail, and right glad are we to know that the interest of the little ones are in his hands.

MASONIC CELEBRATION.—The Masonic fraternity at Thomasville celebrate St. John's Day on the 27th. Col. W. B. Bennett, of Quitman, delivers an address appropriate to the occasion. A festival will be given in the evening. Among the lady managers of the festival, we notice Mrs. L. C. Bryan, Mrs. W. F. Hubert, Mrs. C. W. Stegall, Mrs. B. F. Hawkins, Miss Fannie Hansell, Miss Susie Smith and Miss Maud Beck. The selection of ladies of such taste insures the festival to be a success.

FILLING UP.—We see that the Railroad and Business Chart, being prepared by Messrs. Parham & Co. for 1873 and 1873, of which we spoke in these columns several days since, is nearly completed. The railroads, we are glad to know, have taken an interest in the enterprise. That is a good recommendation for the publishers.

"My dear Emma," remarked a loving husband to his beautiful wife the other day, "you will drive me distracted." "Not at all, my darling duck," responded the witty better-half, only men with brains go distracted."

THE MINSTRELS ARE COMING—Cal Wagner's minstrels are billed to appear at DeGive's next Wednesday and Thursday nights. It is a fine company. A rich treat may be expected.

Go to Mark W. Johnson's and get your flower bulbs. He has Dahlias, Hyacinths, Tulips, Crocers, Gladiolas and other fine bulbs.

C. C. HAMMOCK, Real Estate Agent will sell Mrs. Couch's house and lot on Peters street next Wednesday.

GOD.

O thou Eternal One! whose presence bright
All space doth occupy—all motion guide;
Unchanged through time's all devastating flight,
Thou only God! there is no God beside,
Being above all beings, mighty one!
Whom none can comprehend and none explore!
Who fill'st existence with thyself alone,
Embracing all, supporting, ruling o'er!
Being whom we call God, and know no more!

In its sublime research, philosophy
May measure out the ocean deep—may count
The sands, or the sun's rays—but God! for thee
There is no weight nor measure. None can mount
Up to thy mysteries. Reason's brightest spark,
Though kindled by thy light, in vain would try
To trace thy counsels, infinite and dark;
And thought is lost e'er thought can soar so high,
Even like past moments in eternity.

Thou from primeval nothingness didst call
First chaos, then existence—Lord, on thee
Eternity had its foundation; all
Spring from thee—of light, joy, harmony,
Sole origin—all life, all beauty there;
Thy word created all and doth create;
Thy splendor fills all space with day divine;
Thou art, and wast, and shall be glorious, great,
Life-giving, life-sustaining potentate.

Thy chains the unmeasured universe surround,
Upheld by thee, by thee inspired with breath,
Thou the beginning with the end was bound,
And beautifully mingled life and death!
As sparks mount upward from the fiery blaze,
So suns are born, and worlds spring forth from thee;
And as the spangles in the sunny rays
Shine around the silver snow, the pageantry
Of heaven's bright army glitters in thy praise.

A million torches lighted by thy hand,
Wander unwearied through the blue abyss;
They own thy power, accomplish thy command,
All gay with life, all eloquent with bliss,
What shall we call them? Piles of crystal light?
A glorious company of golden streams?
Lamps of celestial ether burning bright?
Suns lighting systems with joyous beams?
But thou to them art as the moon to the night.

Yes, as the drops of water in the sea,
All this magnificence in thee is lost;
What are ten thousand worlds compared with thee?
And what am I, then? Heaven's unnumbered host,
Though multiplied by myriads, and array'd
In all the glory of sublimest thought,
Is but an atom in the balance weighed
Against thy greatness as a cypher brought Against infinity. What am I? Naught.

Nothing!—but th' effluence of a light divine,
Pervading worlds, hath reached bosom too,
Yes; in my spirit doth thy spirit shine,
As shines the sunbeam in a drop of dew.
Naught! but I live, and on thy pinions fly,
Eager toward thy presence; for in thee
I live, and breathe, and dwell, aspiring high;
E'en to the throne of thy divinity.
I am, O God, and surely thou must be!

Thou art! directing, guiding all thou art!
Direct my understanding, then, to thee,
Control my spirit, guide my wandering heart.
Though but an atom midst immensity,
Still I am something, fashioned by thy hand!
I hold a middle rank, 'twixt heaven and earth,
On the last verge of mortal being stand,
Close to the realms where angels have their birth,
Just off the boundaries of the spirit land.

"Not Till They Are Rooted"

I went into the kitchen the other day with a bit of black velvet in my hand and a whole pall of black in my heart.

All the morning I had been brooding, brooding over my loneliness, shutting out all the light, and looking only at the darkness. A year before I had lost my precious baby, and though God had blessed me in a thousand ways, had surrounded me with love and comfort, the withdrawal of this special joy had blighted everything.

All the year I had tried, with varying success, to lift myself to such a state of trust that I could joyfully think of my darling as far more tenderly cared for than he could be with me; far more safe than in this world of temptation. There had been hours, many of them, when I attained, at least, calmness; but on the morning of which I speak the whole sky was black, with not even a star to call my look upward.

I stood at the ironing table renewing my velvet when one of the girls began, taking in some sickly-looking plants that she was trying to cultivate in pots.

"I take them in every day," she said, "when the sun gets up."

"An' sure, isn't the sun good for them?" said the other girl.

"Not till they get rooted," was the reply, in a tone of surprise at the ignorance displayed by the question.

"Not till they get rooted," said I, over and over to myself, as I went up-stairs. That sentence answers all my questions. God is too good and wise to give us sunshine in too great measure till we get rooted—He knows that we should soon wither and die. So He set us where the light is shaded to our need; He gives our root to moisture of tears, and when we grow strong through running after the Divine, little by little He gives us more sun.

"Not till they get rooted!"

Well, I knew that before my baby died I had given the world far too much of my heart. I had been swayed hither and thither by those who were not my rightful guides. I had been content with low standards and frivolous pursuits. I had been far from a healthy, genuine growth. Evidently the sun had withered, instead of strengthening me. I was not rooted.

To be rooted is the first essential of a healthy growth. Till the root has firm hold of the soil, till it is able to choose and absorb that which it needs from all surrounding elements, the life can not increase—there can be neither flower nor fruit. The soul can not safely bear much sunshine till it is rooted in God. Till then it must have shadow, or be wasted and sickly. Let me then lift my thought constantly to the divine realm, the summer land of the soul, for help and guidance. Let me make God my own, and then all that he possesses will be mine also. Let me through obedience enter into love, so shall I find all that I have lost. The mother's heart that gives itself to God, finds her child that God has taken. All that we lose, God garners; in going to God we find all.—Mrs. M. F. Butts in Christian Weekly.

REMEMBER IT!

That I Challenge the World!

THAT THE COAL CREEK COAL COMPANY'S COAL is the best yet discovered, and that I am their sole agent for the sale of it South of Dalton.

It is for sale in my Coal Yard, between Peachtree and Broad streets, and near to Walton street. I solicit those who have not yet used it to give it a trial and compare its quality with other Coal offered for sale at the same price. I have sold the

Coal Creek Coal

in this city since 1867, and now offer it in any quantity, at wholesale or retail, from 10 cents worth up, thanking my numerous friends who have patronized me, asking a continuance of the same with a large increase in number.

This Coal was awarded the first prize at the last State Fair as the best GRATE COAL.

I have a certificate from Wm. C. Oastler, Esq., the owner of the English Road Steamer, that was exhibited at the last State Fair in this city, that it is the best Coal he had seen in the United States (or any other country) for making steam.

I have to pay cash for the Coal and freight, therefore cannot sell it on credit.

PACIFIC GUANO COMPANY,

Soluble Pacific Guano,

ADAIR & BROTHERS,

Agents for the Company,

ATLANTA, GEORGIA.

THIS GUANO has been in extensive use for seven years in Georgia and adjoining States. Experience demonstrates that 200 pounds per acre increases the crop from double to three-fold the natural yield, thus making one hand equal to two, and one acre equal to two.

The policy of the Pacific Guano Company is to sell a fertilizer unsurpassed for excellence at the lowest price and look to large sales and small profits for reasonable returns on capital invested, hence this valuable Guano is put into market at the present low price to consumers.

Planters are requested to put in their orders early to insure prompt delivery.

IF EITHER IS ELECTED

EVERY PERSON IN THE STATE

will want to get into some business that they can

MAKE A HANDSOME THING OF.

WE have two articles of our own invention and patent that is needed in every household, and meets with ready sale—both paying large profits—for which we wish to sell territory. We have all the territory of the United States to sell or exchange for good real estate, except the States of Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Alabama and three counties in the State of Georgia.

One of our inventions and patents is a Peach Stoner and Halver. With this machine, one hand can do the work of six or eight hands, and at the same time increasing the value of the fruit 25 to 50 per cent; when dried. as it cuts the peach in strictly halves and thereby prevents worms from getting to the dried fruit.

Men, in selling the machines, can make very easily if a good salesman from FIVE to FIFTY DOLLARS per day, clear of all expense.

Having been a cotton planter, and being fond of farming, I would exchange the right to one or both articles for a specified amount of territory for a good plantation, with or without stock and provisions, in South Georgia or Middle Florida.
